"August Flower"

Billousness, "I have been afflicted with biliousness, and constipation, for fifteen years; first one and then another preparation was suggested, and at last a friend recommended August Flower. I took it according to directions and its effects were wonderful, relief, stomach pains which I had been troubled with so long. Words cannot describe the admiration in which I hold your August Flower—it has given me a new lease of life, which before was a burden. Such a medicine is a benediction to humanity, and its good qualities and wonderful merits should be made known to everyone suffering with dyspepsia or biliousness."

IN THE RANKS.

With steady steps he passes down the street. Wearing a gown whose folds cannot conceal The massive strength and grace of every limb: And, looking in the clear cut face, you feel The power of mind. The lips are set by fate, Deep eyes are stoody gray, and wild and free. You think of him, swathed in the battle's mist, Betting the stars of brute-won victory.

In sacred offices no sign he makes That in his veins the fires of passion glow; That love or hate or leadership of men Have any place beneath his sole of snow. Down quiet aisles of the cathedral vast, Voiled in the light of sacred censers dim, He slowly leads the clear voiced choristers, Chanting, in ringing tones, the evening hymn.

And then, when silence falls, his voice alone Lifts up, as if some long lost day to greet. Did sorrow, sin, or love, with careless eyes, Teach him to sing with voice so true and sweet?

Who knows the heart of man? The passing day Flashes a gleam of glory ere it dies; Above the singer is a golden ray That banners to bear his voice beyond the skies.

With banners and with lights he passes on: The pagan tides, another voice is there, Calling for peace and grace on all the world; In echoes sweet you miss the earnest prayer, Filled with the mystery of passing life, The song still lingers with you, soft and low, Stilling the strife that mars the tattered heart, With absolution from its deepest woe.

He bears no burden here, says that one song, Yet inborn fame all time and place defies; You see upon his head the crown of days, The leader lives within his piercing eyes. Perchance he long ago laid down the sword, Content to leave the path ambition trod, And in the army of the holy cross, To strive in peace to lead lost souls to God. Samuel Williams Cooper in Philadelphia Press.

Overhead Rights.

Although any one may extend an overhead wire across or along a street, it does not seem generally known that no wire may pass over a house without the permission of the proprietor, even though the wire be in no way connected with the house. The owner may, if he pleases, take them all down, for his freehold extends from the center of the earth up to the sky. This is a principle that is not generally understood, but occasionally a householder is found who knows his rights and will not allow them to be infringed. Such a person was the landlord of a large boarding house on Beacon Hill, who made the electric light company provide bulbs for the lighting of his dining room in return for the privilege of stringing wires upon his roof. Few persons are so well posted in the law as to know what their rights are, and it is an object with large corporations to keep them in ignorance.—Boston Courier.

Street Car Officials Want No Nickels.

"We have boycotted the nickel," says a Chicago street railway official. "We refuse to permit street car conductors to turn in more than four nickels apiece at the end of their day's work. About half of the passengers pay their fares in nickels, and if these coins were turned in to the company's coffers we would be hopelessly deluged with them, and a few days would practically retire the nickel from local circulation. And how could we handle the bushels and bushels of coin? No bank would accept the money except as a special deposit held for safe keeping. In short, the only way we can handle the nickel is to follow the example of the Irishman with the hot potato—drop it. So we refuse to accept nickels from our employees, and it is their duty to unload upon the passengers all the nickels that are paid in for fares."—New York Tribune.

Dr. Crosby's Convict.

A story is told of Dr. Crosby in The Evangelist which that gentleman used to relate himself. His house was once entered by a burglar, whom the doctor himself captured, and who was sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment. But for three years the minister kept up a correspondence with the convict, converted him, secured his pardon, and later had the satisfaction of seeing him become a prominent and respected citizen in a distant town and blessed with a wife and child.

Rosamond's Conundrum.

Five-year-old Rosamond, whose father is very clever at making charades, was seated at dinner one day when several guests were present. They were all giving conundrums when the little girl quietly said, "Papa, I have one." "Well, my child, what is it?" "Why is the bark of a tree like a dead kitten?" The answer: "Because it can't mew," was greeted with roars of laughter.—New York Tribune.

Bread must not be broken into the soup, nor the soup plate tipped, as the last mouthful must not be devoured. Soup must be taken from the side of the spoon, not from the end. A whole slice of bread or biscuit or muffin should not be buttered at once. It should not be cut, but should be broken off in small pieces, and a bit of butter put on as they are eaten, one by one.

The best way to examine the color of a sample of water is to place the liquid in a long tube closed at each end by a plate of glass. While one extremity of the tube is directed to the source of light, the color is noted at the other. By using the same tube for a series of water samples, it will be possible thus to get properly comparable results.

RAILROAD FREIGHT RATES.

The merchants of San Francisco complained to the Inter-State Commerce Commission of discrimination in freight rates on teas shipped from San Francisco to points east of the Rocky Mountains, as compared with rates to the same points on teas shipped on through bills of lading from China and Japan. The merchants alleged that under existing conditions an eastern house can import teas from Yokohama, and ship it as far west as Kansas City and compete with San Francisco merchants, because the rate on tea from Japan to New York is one and a half cents per pound, while from San Francisco to New York it is three cents per pound. Under this arrangement San Francisco merchants could ship teas from San Francisco to Yokohama, and from Yokohama back by way of San Francisco to New York, for less than 70 per cent. of what it costs to ship teas direct from San Francisco to New York. Of the cost and a half per pound freight from Yokohama to New York the steamship company receives one-half cent and the railroads one cent per pound or one-third of what they charge San Francisco merchants for the same service. This discrimination, the merchants say, cuts them off from the tea business east of the Rocky Mountains. They ask if the railroads as common carriers, should not accept freight from San Francisco merchants on the same terms that they give the steamship companies?

The Chamber of Commerce joined with the merchants and addressed a memorial to the Inter-State Commerce Commission setting forth the facts stated. The Commission decided in favor of the merchants but the railroad companies paid no attention to the decision, and the merchants will take the matter to the courts.

Nevada merchants complain of similar discriminations in freight rates against them and in favor of San Francisco merchants. They allege that on freight from the east they have to pay through rates to San Francisco and local rates from that city to Reno, Winnemucca, Elko and other points on the railroad. This prevents Nevada merchants from selling goods purchased in the east as cheap as they can be sold in San Francisco, though the haul to Reno is 244 miles less than to San Francisco. This discrimination operates against Nevada merchants and the result is that there is not a wholesale house in the State, and merchants in Nevada, purchasing wares and merchandise in the east where the San Francisco merchant makes his purchases cannot compete with the latter though the Nevada merchants have from 244 to 500 miles the advantage in distance from the purchasing points. Here in Nevada merchants think they are discriminated against to favor San Francisco. That, however, is nothing more than what some of the State officers of Nevada do, as was recently shown, as they discriminate against home merchants who are taxed to pay their salaries, by purchasing supplies for State institutions in San Francisco. Under such circumstances it is not surprising that Nevada does not increase in population or taxable property.

THE GAMBLING SCANDAL.

The news from England indicates that the scandal created by the baccarat game, at which the Prince of Wales was banker and several of the blue-bloods of Great Britain were players, is by no means settled by the verdict against Sir Gordon Cumming. The church people have nearly all adopted resolutions condemning the Prince of Wales for the part he took in the game, and the newspapers, both Tory and Liberal, disapprove the conduct of the gamblers in unmeasured terms. The Radicals in the House of Commons, who are opposed to the aristocracy are embracing the opportunity to oppose the rottenness of royalty. One of them gave notice that next Monday the Minister of War will be questioned regarding the action he intends to take in the case of the three officers, the Prince of Wales, General Owen Williams and Lieutenant Berley Williams, who signed a document which allowed Sir Gordon Cumming to remain an officer of the British army, although they believed him guilty of conduct unbecoming a soldier or a gentleman. The Minister will also be asked what course he will pursue with these same officers for having broken the army regulations which require such cases as that of Cumming to be brought to the notice of the commanding officer. That Earl Stanhope will have to answer those questions there is scarcely a doubt, as to refuse to do so would be an admission on his part that the Prince and his associates are above the law and not amenable to army regulations, or the rules of society.

It is stated that at least a thousand clerks will be discharged from the Census Bureau at Washington on July 1st. Mr. Reed's Billion Dollar Congress having made no appropriation to pay them. The next Congress will have to provide for the deficiency. As the proper business of the Census Bureau is to enumerate the inhabitants of the United States, and that has been done, though not in a satisfactory manner, it may be as well to omit the mass of worthless matter generally printed, as a part of the census, is published just about the time for taking the new census.

Several carloads of potatoes and onions from California went through yesterday for the Kansas City market.

BY TELEGRAPH!

News of Importance From Home and Abroad.

The Congo Treaty.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—A number of inquiries received at the State Department from philanthropic organizations and individuals as to the failure of the United States to signify its adherence to the Congo treaty, final ratification of which must be exchanged before the end of the month. This treaty is an agreement to suppress the slave trade, the sale of breech loading firearms and intoxicants in the Congo district of Equatorial Africa, and nearly all of the great powers have accepted it. The State officials believe the treaty will go into effect at the appointed time in respect to all of the signatories except the United States, and it will be left open to this Government to give its adhesion hereafter. The opponents of the treaty at the last session of the Senate, took their stand upon several propositions, one of which was that it would be unwise for the United States to give recognition to the present rather broad claims of European nations to the best portions of Africa which is tacitly recognized by the treaty.

Ex-City Treasurer Bardsley.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—The deeper experts probe into the affairs of ex-City Treasurer Bardsley the more apparent his rascalities become, and enormous sums which he made away with are daily added to. Yesterday accountants reported a grave discrepancy on Bardsley's accounts with the State and to-day presented Mayor Stewart with a statement showing $420,000 State appropriation for public school purposes for the year ending June 30, together with a balance of $25,000 from the previous year, making a total of $445,000 which has been misappropriated by Bardsley to his own uses. The State Treasury showed that the $420,000 noted above was paid Bardsley December 31st. It is surmised that he used part of this vast sum to take up bad checks of the Keystone Band for $200,000 that he was carrying as cash.

Queen Bees Entitled to Free Entry.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Assistant Secretary Spaulding has decided that queen bees are entitled to free entry under the tariff provision for animals specially imported for breeding purposes, notwithstanding a requirement that provision for a certificate of pedigree showing pure breed cannot possibly be complied with in their case. This is in harmony with the practices under the old tariff, but is in conflict with the practice under the present tariff of assessing duty on queen bees at the rate of twenty per cent. ad valorem under the provision for animals not otherwise provided for. The present ruling is based on the representations that these bees are never imported for other than breeding purposes, and that they are always of superior breed.

The Treasury Scandal.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Another arrest was made this afternoon in connection with the Treasury scandal. H. H. Yard, former partner of President Lucas, deceased, of the Keystone Bank in the seaside speculation was captured in Trenton, N. J., where he is being held awaiting requisition papers. Yard was a real estate promoter and closely connected with President Marsh of the Keystone Bank. He left the city a few days after Marsh disappeared. The warrant upon which Yard was arrested was issued on a charge of conspiracy with ex-Treasurer Bardsley in stealing the city and State taxes.

Monarchy Trembling.

LONDON, June 12.—The storm rising around the Prince of Wales is fast gaining in intensity, endangering his chances of succession to the throne if not the existence of England monarchy. No class appears to be stirred up so deeply as the great middle class, the real strength of the country, and hitherto the solid prop of monarchy. Wherever its voice becomes audible its denunciations of the Prince are accompanied by regrets at his nearness to the throne.

The Railroad Wins.

HELENA, June 10.—Judge Sawyer to-day decided the case of the Northern Pacific Railway vs. R. P. Barden and others in favor of the railway. The case was a test one, and involved the title of the railway to mineral lands in odd sections in its grant. Sawyer decided that plaintiff had title to all land on which mineral had been found since '82, the time of filing a map of a definite location.

Cook County Bonds Duplicated.

CHICAGO, June 12.—The discovery was made yesterday that two interest coupons of four per cent. Cook county bonds were duplicates of coupons already redeemed. The coupons are forgeries. How extensively it has been practiced is not known. Investigation is being pushed.

The Esmeralda Leaves Panama.

PANAMA, June 12.—The Chilean insurgent Esmeralda, which reached here several days ago from Acapulco, and was permitted to take a supply of coal from the stock of the Panama railroad company, sailed last night southward.

Fire and Rain.

SONOMA, Cal., June 12.—At 11 o'clock this morning a grass fire broke out on the Appleton farm near town and for a time it was thought the dwelling and barn would go, but with the assistance of friends and neighbors, Appleton succeeded in arresting the flames at the very threshold of the residence.

Rain has fallen here at intervals for two nights doing but little damage. The weather is now clear and windy.

A Brakeman Shot by a Tramp.

GREENEVILLE, Col., June 12.—While brakeman John Dillon was attempting to get a tramp from a freight train the tramp shot and killed Dillon then jumped from the train and started across the fields. He was pursued by Brakeman Matting who finally killed him.

INDIAN REVENGE.

The Pintos Quarter a Chinaman Who Butchered One of Their Number.

Last Thursday a dispatch printed in the JOURNAL stated a Pinto named Poker Tom, had been killed at Bridgeport, near Bodie by a Chinaman named Ah Tia, with whom Tom had been gambling and that the Walker river Indians were determined to have revenge. The Walker Lake Bulletin says the Chinaman gave the Indians a "big eat" and they suspected after the feast was over that they had been dined on the head, heart and other portions of Poker Tom, and had made up their minds to quarter the Chinaman. Ah Tia became frightened, applied to the Sheriff for protection and was locked up in jail.

The Enterprise, of yesterday, learned from passengers that Ah Tia was killed by Indians in the streets of Bridgeport.

It is said that Ah Tia assigned all his property to a lawyer, was given a preliminary examination, discharged, and was assisted by Indian while on his way to his store from the court-room. They first cut one of his arms off and then told him to dance. Scared to death, he simply uttered frightful laments. They then cut the other arm off, when death relieved him from further torture.

The University Commencement ball at the Pavilion last night was a very pleasant affair. It was an invitation party and therefore not as largely attended as it otherwise would have been, but, perhaps, more enjoyable, because of its exclusiveness, and the dancing was kept up until an early hour this morning.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularly of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind. "I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat I could not digest. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." ## MR. BARNES OF NEW YORK.

The Next Theatrical Attraction.

As a play writer Mr. Gunter's name has long held an enviable place on the American stage; and doubtless in writing his now very famous novel of the same name as the play given, Mr. Gunter had a clear and main idea of the theatre representation guiding him in the story's preparation. Certainly few equally dramatic novels have come forth with an American imprint. Mr. Gunter's faith in his novel was well repaid by an enormous popularity, and a like issue attended last year's stage presentation of the story. Our readers will have the play and its presentation before them for their competent judgment thereon next Monday evening at McKissick's Opera House, and both Mr. Sanger and the theatre's managers feel quite assured of the verdict that will follow its seeing.

An Address Delivered at the University Commencement Exercises.

Knowing as you do the theory of our government and our glorious history of independence and patriotism, you wonder what one could possibly say on such a subject. But there was no lack of material, as seen in examples of dogged servility and contemptible flunkysim.

On all sides we see the spirit of American independence replaced by European obsequiousness. Within our own boundaries the poor toady to the rich, and even in Washington what is more noticeable than the universal catering to party and public opinion.

In the past the object of legislation was to promote the welfare of the United States, but now our Representatives in Congress have a caucus before passing upon a measure, and the first and all important question is, "How will the measure effect the prospects of our party in the next election?" And whatever be the answer to this, it decides the action of that party. However, there are yet a few noble exceptions to this rule, and we are not compelled to go east of the Rocky Mountains to find them.

This childish idea of dependence permeates every vein and artery of our Republic. It even governs our business transactions and our financial system. Why did the United States Government demonetize silver a few years ago? Why? because England set the example, and of course we have to do what England does, "don't you know." And when we saw our folly, what was done? There was only one course to pursue. We must send committees to Europe to see if our dictators would allow us to remonetize it; and when this action was refused, we acquiesced. Of course we acquiesced. What could we do? The country which robbed our ships of their sailors and was whipped for it in 1812, now when our population was doubled and our wealth multiplied by ten or twenty, established our financial policy and plundered our mines of one-fourth of their value.

A country the greatest in the world, a world within itself, becomes a suppliant at the feet of its twice-conquered lord. One country, which feeds and clothes the half of Europe, must beg for mercy at the hands of its dependents. But this is in accordance with the European idea of cash, which, although nobly repudiated by our Constitution, seems to be the God of many of our citizens. We must make them our Lords, take their scorn and dictation, and then support them. We, instead of exercising that spirit of independence, our natural heritage from Washington, Adams, Jefferson and their many compatriots, sink into a nation of ignominious vassals.

Even in dress we ape Europeans. Go into our cities; look at a fashion plate, and the first thing that meets your eye is "The latest from London," or "Just out in Paris," and there are ten chances to one that the style is wholly an American conception, and that the articles were made in America by American workmen; but one word of this to the public and the fashion is doomed. We must let the aristocratic bunnies of Europe wear our coats first or they are not salable. The idea of our copying anything from Europe is absurd. America, an infant among nations, in her mighty rush of progress has drawn the whole world in her wake. America, who taught the world the use of steam, America, who taught the mistress of the seas to build ships and to cover her men-of-war with iron, America, who by the invention of the sewing machine liberated more slaves from serfdom than Alexander II, or President Lincoln, America, who by the practical application of electricity has lighted the world and annihilated time and distance, America, who by her practical common sense and ingenious inventions has doubled, tripled, yes, quadrupled or sextupled the wealth and enlightenment of the whole world, must modestly abide the opinion and approval of Europe. Look at our literature. Although we produce as much as any other nation, what is it? Can we honestly call it American literature? Does it portray the beauties of American life or the grand of our social system? Oh, no! There is no poetry in our existence. Our authors must seek their models elsewhere. In bonny England, where the heir apparent plays baccarat, in immoral France, in Spain or bankrupt and treacherous Italy. But why deplore this servility in literature? What better could we expect when the leading colleges of our country, the institutions which should be the light-towers of patriotism, make it a condition in selecting a professor that he shall have studied in Europe, and our Universities show their subservience by sending their graduates across the Atlantic as a reward for scholarship. Why should America, who has produced the mechanical geniuses of the world for the last century, crave the impractical knowledge of Europe? Why have we no great scholars? Why are our institutions of learning scoffed at by European servants? Is it because we are inferior in intellect? No! It is simply because we try to imitate and follow Europe, and we make as infamous and ridiculous a failure as Europe does in trying to copy our practicality. Were our scholars independent and American in their ideas, pursuing the useful and discarding the useless, they would soon command the same respect and honor as our mechanics are. Look at dentistry, a branch of learning and practice in which there is no toadyism. In Europe if your tooth aches the barber takes it out with the fire tongs or digs it out with his scissors; if it needs filling he drives in a lead plug. American dentists are in demand all over the world, and thankful we are for their skill and proud of their independent research which has given them that skill.

Let us for a moment glance at what our scholars take for their models. The sages of Germany for instance. Germany, the land of Universities and of suicides; the land where the code of honor is held in greater reverence than the civil or moral law, and duelling, that relic of barbarism, is as much honored as its companion in descent from medieval times, the idea that the autocrat rules by divine will. But let us not decry the greatness of the German scholar. He is a true philosopher. He has investigated nature and knows her laws, and to his credit let it be said that he puts his knowledge to practice. When he wishes to evolve an idea he simply disposes it with his favorite dagger. We would not be understood as taking such a narrow gauge view of the subject as to say that Germany has not produced great scholars and added her full share to the world's stock of learning. Germany, France and England all are prolific in scholars and great in scholarship. We do not envy them their greatness. We glory in their achievements. But why should America, like a supple vine, cling to the great tree of knowledge which Europe has nourished. The seed from that tree was planted in our colonies years ago, and had that young tree been pruned to the American idea of independence in a soil where no thistle or barbarous prejudice grew to stifle its development and beneath a sun which the clouds of caste could not obscure, why should it not, even now, have towered above and overshadowed Europe the same as everything in which we have allowed full sway to American aggressiveness and push. "He who goes a borrowing goes a sorrowing," and as long as we try to borrow European learning we will be jeered and despised. There is one other kind of toadyism which is so contemptible that it pains me to mention it. Yet it is only the natural outgrowth of the slavishness which I have previously mentioned. I refer to this trading of American gold for the titles and nodes of nobility. Our language is not strong enough to express contempt for these modern Esau's who sacrifice their wealth, their honor, their birth-right, to gain admission to the enchanted circle, to enter society, the most notable distinction of which is its vice, to mix and mingle with the blue blood of Europe. Yea, verily their blood is blue with scrofula and the germs of insanity. To think that even the meanest American could sell his birth-right, that of being a king among kings, for the right to kiss the foot of the one king in a community of vassals.

Oh! America, sweet land of liberty, must you grovel in the dust before this rotten idol, aristocracy? Have you forgot those torn and bleeding feet that followed Washington? Have you forgotten the shivering and starving heroes of Valley Forge? Has that glorious and divine spirit of liberty and equality among men gone from your bosom?

"Still keep thy independence whole;
Let nothing warp thee from thy course,
And thou shalt wield a giant's force,
And wrong before thy foot shall roll."

HENRY C. CUTTING.
